

Turning Problems into Opportunities

Look at the 'problems' below. See if you can think positively and turn them into an 'opportunity' – a chance to learn something new or have a positive experience.

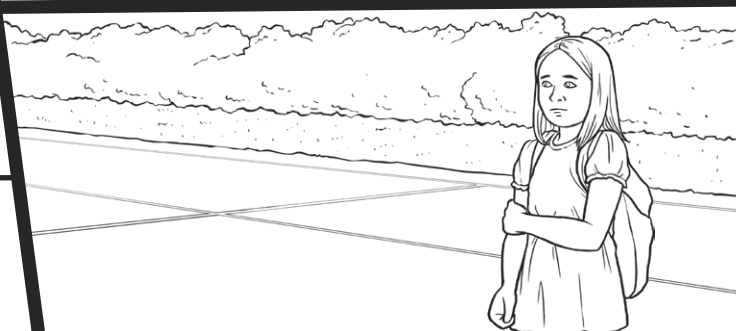

When you get on the school bus, there's only one empty seat next to a child in the year above you.

The lunchtime club you signed up to is full this term so you don't get a place.

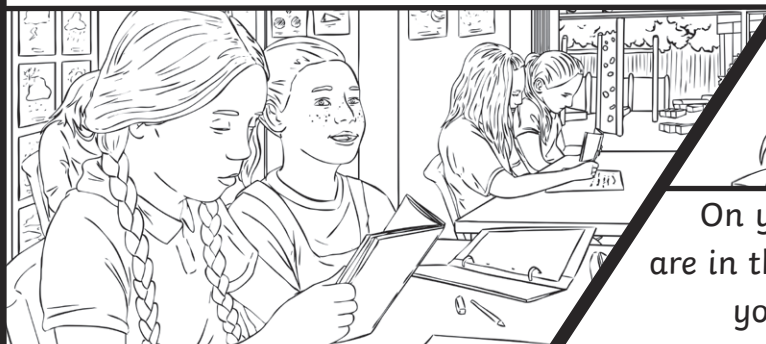

In your tutor group, the teacher asks you all to stand up and say a few things about yourself.

At breaktime, you can't see the one person you know from your primary school.

In art class, you sit next to someone who is a lot better than you at drawing.

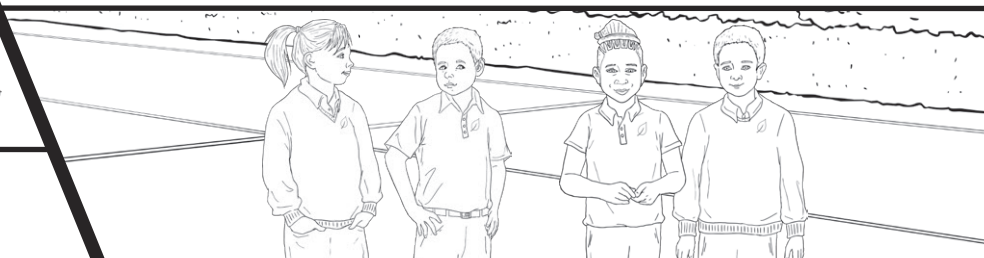

On your first day, you are told that you are in the group learning German even though you put Spanish as your preference.

You and a few other children from your year miss the bus after school so you have to wait half an hour for the next one.

In maths, you realise you have forgotten your ruler.
